

February 2018

Welcome to the first instalment of Member Insight. This monthly update has replaced our previous communication Sector Round-Up and is designed to deliver our members clear, concise and informative news on sector and skills developments, so that you can fully optimise the membership services. To find out more about Member Insight and how we're changing our communications to members, please read on.

Energy & Utilities Skills Partnership Launches UK Sector Inclusion Commitment

On 11 February 2019, 32 sector organisations launched the Sector's Inclusion Commitment. A key priority of the Energy and Utilities Workforce Renewal and Skills Strategy: 2020 is attracting and recruiting more diverse talent into our sector which reflects our local communities. We're inviting all our members to join the commitment to help tackle the challenges the sector faces, in order to create a better and more sustainable future represented through diverse talent. To find out more about the sector commitment and how you can become part of it, click below.

New Member Communications

Following our initial findings from the membership deep dive which involved a research exercise by Ipsos Mori, we have reviewed and relaunched our monthly email updates for members. Formerly known as Sector Round-Up, this new communication, Member Insight, has been constructed to provide our members with clear, concise, and targeted information that will help you to optimise the membership services available.

Keeping members briefed on the latest sector news and providing additional insights will be key to our communications going forward. Where possible we will signpost consultations, provide our thoughts on the impact of policy and sector announcements and offer advice and guidance on how members can get involved with the latest initiatives to achieve a return on their engagement. This combined with a full review of our Membership LinkedIn group will further enhance the way we ensure you only receive information relevant to you and enable the sharing of best practice and have open discussions about what is happening within the sector.

If you have any further membership related enquiries please email membership@euskills.co.uk
